JUDGMENT

In view of the intervening development it is not necessary at this stage to deal with the various contentions raised by the petitioner with regard to the alleged arrears of salary, terminal benefits etc. It is brought to my notice that the petitioner has been paid arrears of salary as claimed by her. Learned standing counsel for the respondent after getting instructions submits that a sum of Rs.26386/- has also been paid towards arrears of gratuity. He further submits that the petitioner is not entitled to claim any other benefits.

2. However, it is contended by the petitioner that he may still have to get some more towards arrears of gratuity. It is open to the petitioner to bring it to the notice of the respondent if there are any arrears. The said claim shall be considered by the respondent and appropriate action will be taken in the matter.

The writ petition is closed with the above direction.
